

1/12/18

Evening

[This question paper contains 7 printed pages.]

Your Roll No.....

Sr. No. of Question Paper : 2068

Unique Paper Code : 61018511

Name of the Paper : Organizational Behaviour
(GEC-5.1)

Name of the Course : B. Voc. (BFSI/Software Development) (CBCS), 2018

Semester : V

Duration : 3 Hours

Maximum Marks : 75

Instructions for Candidates

1. Write your Roll No. on the top immediately on receipt of this question paper.
2. Attempt all questions.
3. All questions carry equal marks.
4. Parts of the same question should be attempted together and NOT separately.

1. (a) Trace the historical developments and schools of thought leading up to the field of organisational behavior in India. (10)

P.T.O.

- (b) Describe how the field of OB today is being shaped by the global economy, increasing diversity in the workforce and advances in technology. (5)

OR

- (c) What are the challenges and opportunities for managers in using OB concepts.
- (d) Briefly explain the major behavioral sciences discipline that contributes to OB? (5)

2. (a) Write short notes on any two of the following :

- (i) Hierarchy of Needs Theory
- (ii) Dual Factor Theory
- (iii) McClelland's Theory of Needs (8)

- (b) Explain the concept of job satisfaction. Also summarize the three major theories of Job Satisfaction. (7)

OR

- (c) What are the similarities and differences between Goal Setting Theory and MBO? (8)

- (d) Describe the concept of organizational commitment. Also, discuss its major forms. (7) thousands of dollars by adopting integrated office automation in the wrong way, and she figured the project would have to hire somebody for at least six months to get the new machines working and to teach the staff how to use them. Welk was pleased because Clammer evidently had accepted the idea of a computer in the office. But he also realized that as the resident authority on computers, he had a lot of work to do before they went shopping for machines.

Case Questions :

- (a) Is organization development appropriate in this situation? Why or why not?
- (b) What kinds of resistance to change have the employees of the project displayed?
- (c) What can Martin Welk do to overcome the resistance? (5×3=15)

did not care. They swapped horror stories about computers that had charged them thousands of dollars for purchases they had never made or had assigned the same airplane seat to five people.

"We'll lose all control," Suzanne Clammer complained. She saw some kind of office automation as inevitable, yet she kept thinking she would probably quit before it came about. She liked hand-addressing mailings to arts patrons whom she had met, and she felt sure that the recipients contributed more because they recognized her neat blue printing. She remembered the agonies of typing class in high school and believed she was too old to take on something new and bound to be much more confusing. Two other employees, with whom she had worked for a decade, called her after work to ask if the prospect of a computer in the office meant they should be looking for other jobs. "I have enough trouble with English grammar," one of them wailed. "I'll never be able to learn computer language."

One morning Clammer called Martin Welk into her office, shut the door, and asked him if he could recommend any computer consultants. She had read an article that explained how a company could waste

3. (a) Define emotional intelligence. What is the evidence for and against the existence of emotional intelligence? (7)
- (b) Explain the concept of Johari Window. (8)

OR

- (c) Describe how sexual harassment constitutes an abuse of organizational power and ways of reducing its occurrence. (7)
- (d) Discuss the concept of Transactional Analysis. (8)
4. (a) Explain the Behavioral theories of Leadership and discuss the limitations of these theories. (8)
- (b) How can managers create a culture for change? (7)

OR

- (c) How can organizations select and develop effective leaders? (7)
- (d) Explain why people are resistant to organizational change and how this resistance may be overcome? (8)

5. (a) What are the major forms of Electronic Communication? State their unique benefits and challenges. (10)

(b) Discuss the characteristics of virtual organizations? (5)

OR

Attempt all questions given at the end of this Case Study. Each question carries equal marks.

The New England Arts Project had its headquarters above an Italian restaurant in Portsmouth, New Hampshire. The project had five full-time employees, and during busy times of the year, particularly the month before Christmas, it hired as many as six part-time workers to type, address envelopes, and send out mailings. Although each of the five full-timers had a title and a formal job description, an observer would have had trouble telling their positions apart. Suzanne Clammer, for instance, was the executive director, the head of the office, but she could be found typing or licking envelopes just as often as Martin Welk, who had been working for less than a year as office coordinator, the lowest position in the project's hierarchy.

Despite a constant sense of being a month behind, the office ran relatively smoothly. No outsider would have had a prayer of finding a mailing list or a budget in the office, but project employees knew where almost everything was, and after a quiet fall they did not mind having their small space packed with workers in November. But a number of the federal funding agencies on which the project relied began to grumble about the cost of the part-time workers, the amount of time the project spent handling routine paperwork, and the chaotic condition of its financial records. The pressure to make a radical change was on. Finally Martin Welk said it: "Maybe we should get a computer."

To Welk, fresh out of college, where he had written his papers on a word processor, computers were just another tool to make a job easier. But his belief was not shared by the others in the office, the youngest of whom had fifteen years more seniority than he. A computer would eat the project's mailing list, they said, destroying any chance of raising funds for the year. It would send the wrong things to the wrong people, insulting them and convincing them that the project had become another faceless organization that